

THE ADVOCATE.

A WOMAN SOLDIER.

Sensual To a War Romance Revealed by a Lawsuit.

[Barksville (Ky.) Cor. New York Recorder.]

The Circuit Court, at its next session, will find before it a case bristling with romance. The litigation is over a land title.

In the early days of the war a company of guerrillas made their headquarters in the Bennett neighborhood in an adjoining county. One of the members of the company was a dashing young fellow known as Jack Mason. None of his followers knew his antecedents, but as he was jolly, good natured, enthusiastic and brave in raids, no questions were asked.

Mason was feminine in form and conduct, but this was attributed to his youth. In a skirmish one day Mason was wounded, and left at the house of a family named Orth.

Here it was discovered that Mason was a girl. Her wound, through painful, was not serious, but kept her confined to her bed for several months, during which time she became a mother. After her recovery she disappeared, leaving some jewelry and money for the baby.

The excitement of the war caused the Orths to forget the girl, and they came to look upon and love the winsome baby as their own, and did the best they could for her.

She grew to womanhood and married a young farmer, and now is the mother of two children.

Her husband owned some land in a distant county, which he sold. Later a question of title came up, during which the wife was called upon to testify. During the hearing Mrs. Mayhew told her life story as she had it from the Orths. The local newspapers made some reference to her story, which was republished in several places, including Knoxville.

This last was seen by the wife of a prosperous merchant in a country town in Tennessee and created the wildest joy in her bosom.

In Mrs. Mayhew she recognized her baby, her years, and she came on to investigate.

Her story is that shortly after her marriage she became jealous of her husband and accused him, as she now knows, falsely. They quarreled, and he left her.

In despair and ashamed to go to her parents, who had forbidden her to marry, and being young and romantic, she fled as far as she could, and joined the guerrillas.

After the birth of the child, without resources, she ran away from the Orths, intending to return home to tell to her parents and then return for the child. When she reached her home she found she had overtaxed her strength and was ill for many weeks. When she recovered she could not locate the baby. She had not made any inquiries about the country nor even the nearest town while at Orth's, and the ravages of war had together with the constantly moving bodies of the army in East Tennessee prevented a search.

After the war search was made, but without success, and the baby was given up as lost until the publication came to her notice. The mother, who had been reunited to her husband, at once came to Orth's, was recognized, and proceeded to see her daughter, who was frantic with joy at seeing the mother she never expected to know. All this story will be confirmed in the next session of the Circuit Court when the land case comes up.

Little Rock, Ark., was visited by a tornado Tuesday night which destroyed over a million dollars' worth of property and caused the death of a number of persons and the injury of many more. That part of the town lying between the river front and Third street and Commerce and Center streets is almost in ruins. The State penitentiary was badly damaged. One convict was killed and others injured. The State Asylum for the Insane was almost destroyed. Rain fell in torrents, and the electric light wires being down the city was left in total darkness. The property loss will reach over $1,000,000.

A BIT OF HUMAN NATURE.

The other day, when the Emperor William, of Germany, announced his intention of visiting the next expedition in Paris, La Patrie, a leading newspaper of that city said that he would not be suffered to enter Paris until he restored Metz and Strassburg to France.

This feeling is very natural, but it should not be allowed to prevail in France or in any other civilized country. All nations must take their chances when they go to war and accept the result. Here in Atlanta General Sherman was cordially received as an honored guest at our cotton exposition twelve years ago, although he had laid the entire city in ashes in 1864.

The Emperor William should be less objectionable to the French than Sherman was to our people. William was not responsible for the capture of Metz and Strassburg. France suffered those disasters long before the present ruler of Germany ascended the throne, and if he now feels so well disposed towards his old enemies that he is willing to visit their capital city on an international occasion they should receive him courteously.

In this age of Christianity and enlightenment it is the worst possible policy to encourage the perpetration of public and private enmities and feuds. If the Southern States can afford to receive and entertain the Northern invaders of thirty years ago France can afford to receive the Emperor William.—Atlanta Constitution.

MRS. FRED D. HALE

Expires at Owensboro After a Brief Illness.

Owensboro, Ky., Oct. 4.—This community was shocked this morning to learn that G. S. Hale, Mrs. Fred D. Hale had died of hernia. She was taken ill Sunday, and only the very intimate friends of the family knew that she was ill at all.

The deceased was the daughter of Theodore A. Bell, North Porter, Ala., and was thirty-four years old. Besides her husband, Rev. Fred D. Hale, she leaves five children.

The Delineator for October is called the "Autumn Number," and contains an unusually large number of articles on interesting subjects. In addition to the regular fashion matter there is a special article of much value to mothers called the Fitting Out the Family for Autumn and Winter. There are also articles for the housekeeper on Seasonable Cookery, Hints on serving Peaches, Apples and Pines, and The Use of the House. Life and Work at Mount Holyoke College are well treated by a recent graduate, the second paper in the Kindergarten Series opens up a new field in an interesting way, and there is a practical contribution on Millinery as an Employment for women. The Relations between Mother and Daughter are concluded in this number, and in How to live Wisely the subject of Illness and What Not To Do is ably discussed. Instruction in Artistic Handcraft is given in Venetian Iron Work and the uses of Crepe and Tissue Papers, and entertainment is provided in a Halloween German and a Christmas Party. Around the Tea-Table is as gossip as usual, and there are papers on Knitting, Netting, Tatting, Lace Making, Crocheting, etc. etc. The subscription price of the Delineator is One Dollar a year. Single copies, fifteen cents each. Published by The Butterick Publishing Co. (Limited), New York, and for sale by Local Agents and Newsdealers.

Secretary Carlisle has filed, in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, his answer to the application of the Miles Planting and Manufacturing Company for a mandamus to compel the Treasury Department to continue the official inspection of the Miles Company's sugar production. Besides averring the repeal of the law providing for such inspection, Secretary Carlisle contends that his construction of appropriation acts of Congress are not reviewable upon application for a writ of mandamus.

The Florida election was held Tuesday last without the expected conflict between warring Democratic factions in Jacksonville. In three wards the polls were closed because the officers objected to the presence of deputy sheriffs, and no votes were cast. The Legislature will be almost solely Democratic, the Populist vote having been very light. Even the Republicans joined in helping to down the Pops.

MISSIONARIES IN DANGER.

Rev. W. B. White Says the Situation in China is Grave.

San Francisco, Oct. 4.—It is the breaking up of the Chinese Empire that the missionaries in China have most to fear just now," was the remark of Rev. W. B. White last night. "The news of the attacks of the Japanese are of comparatively insignificant importance except to those particular missionaries who happen to be in those parts of China likely to be invaded. Even in the case of the missionaries would probably be deemed neutral, and would be amply protected by the flags of their own country, but in the event of the dissolution of the empire it is hard to predict what might happen to them, but it would be of serious consequence."

Rev. Mr. White is of the Southern Presbyterian Church, and just arrived from Shanghai. He came back on account of his health, and his traveling companion, Rev. R. O. Hadden, was another missionary of the same church.

"It is well understood," continued Mr. White, "that the present Emperor is a foreigner, heartily disliked by a great portion of his subjects. Under the leadership of any good man, Li Hung Chang, for instance, a rebellion would almost certainly prove successful. As soon as the restraining power of the Emperor is gone the Chinese hatred of foreign missionaries will be free to make itself felt more than it ever has in the past. It is reported in the late dispatches that attacks on the missionaries have already been made in the North, and I do not doubt it in the least."

The Southern Presbyterian Church has seven mission stations, all tributary to Shanghai.

WHY THE BEARD TURNS GRAY.

A Barber Says the Cause Is Frequent and Early Shaving.

"Somebody asked in the Sun the other day," said the barber carefully cleaning his customer's ears of lather, "why the beard grows white more quickly as the hair. He says his beard twenty years younger than his hair, and looks twenty years older. Yet, and every man's beard is so, eh? First come the hair of the head, eh? So. What you do? By and by your hair turns gray. How? Just the ends on top, close around the edges, and shave in the neck. So, eh?"

"Then the beard come. What you do? Shave around the face and leave the little moustache. No boy want a beard, so he shave him, eh? Some times shave the moustache, make him thick, but not often. But the beard, every day. So. By and by, your doctor tell you cover your throat, or you have no time for shave, or your wife think you look too young for her age, eh? Anyway you let your beard grow. And it come in gray."

"Why? I tell you. Because of shaving. To cut off the ends to the hair sometimes does not hurt its life—perhaps help it. I have my doubts, but to cut it clean off, or shave it, you cut the hair close or shave the beard you cause it to push; it is irritated into growing extravagantly, and what of its life should go into the coloring matter—the pigment, eh?—comes out white, eh? And so if this is not so, for where of the hair begins the gray to come? Here at the temples, where it is clipped so short; here at the back of the neck, where it is also cut short, but above all, in the neck back of the ears, because there it is shaved. So?"

"And shall I tell you something more, eh? To have the whole hair cut so short and so often will make the whole head gray ten years before it should be. Bay run, eh? No; so, ah. Thank you, sir. Come to see me again, eh?—New York Sun.

announcing Hopeless. Yet Saved.

From a letter written by Mrs. A. E. Hurl of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my Lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent one. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in eight bottles; this cured me and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottles free at W. S. Lloyd's Drugstore, regular size, 50c and $1.00.

THEY DON'T PAY THEIR DEBTS.

Famous Classes of "Deadbeats" With Whom Collectors Fear Poverty.

Men who will not pay their debts have a complete calendar of "bluffs"—bland innocence for one creditor, effrontery for another, apology, indifference, persuasion, "the last of next week," "the first of the month," all the degrees of a lie, a whole catalogue and appendix of false pretenses—amusing leaves on the stage, but bad as members of society, says a writer in the Boston Herald.

A collector called the other day upon a man extremely well known in Boston. He lives in a hotel, and Mr. Collector put up his card at one of the bell boys. "His key shortly returned and said, 'Not in.' But there was something in the boy's eye that the collector thought he knew the meaning of. 'Not in'—the man's room very well. The debt was an old one, and he had called on the same errand many times before. 'This man has been called upon by Mr. X., and he had promised to pay. The collector did not really put much faith in this promise, for it had become a pretty old story, but he is a persevering man, as a good many bad old debtors can testify. He went immediately up to the room alone, knocked at the door and a familiar voice within called, 'Come in.'"

"Demmit!" exclaimed the debtor, in a rage, when he saw who his visitor was, "the debt (not to quote him exactly) do you mean by coming up here when I send down word I am not in? And he proceeded to work himself into a tempest of abuse."

That was one bluff. But it did not scare the collector off. With good natured savvy he said he was very sorry to be so rudely cordially welcomed. He thought the boy might be mistaken, as this was the time appointed for him to call. He had called several times before. He was sorry to annoy any one, but collecting was his business. Mollified at last, Mr. X. said of course he could not blame the collector. "But demmit!" he continued, "you only come up because your firm sent you. Can't you say I wasn't in?"

This open handed bluff did not work either. The collector replied that he did not do business that way. The visit was unsuccessful, however. You cannot draw blood out of a turnip, and the collector was convinced that the man really did not have the money at that time. He was finally obliged to content himself with another promise.

It seems to be a mania with some people to "gain a little time" on their bill. One firm in Boston is told by a writer that one of its customers in the far west, whose bill was two years overdue, at last, under threat, sent a firm in Boston to collect his nature. This meant a delay of about two weeks before the check was sent back to him and returned with the signature, and the firm believes the man committed it intentionally, just to gain this much additional time.

A similar meanness was played upon an honest and thrifty woman in one of the suburbs, who owns a house beside the one she lives in. She leased this house for two years and thought she would save the lawyer's fee by buying a blank lease form and making it out herself. She recommended it to a woman called for her money and was met with the reply that the man preferred to wait till the expiration of the two years and then pay in full, as there was nothing in the lease that called for payment monthly, but only "at the rate of $25 per month."

Woes of the Porter.

"If there's one sort of porter who has a harder time than another, it's the one who runs the buffet car. It is what a porter said in telling of his woes. 'To be sure, now and then he's in luck. But the way things are counted, weighed and measured out to sort of porter makes your head ache.'"

"The sugar is actually almost counted and just so many lumps allowed for each cup of coffee. If a passenger, as sometimes one will, takes a fancy to keep a few lumps of sugar as a sort of candy, so much is taken out of the porter."

Every loaf of bread is expected to do so many orders, and an extra slice is taken out of the porter. He's expected to be more than careful of everything, and a broken egg is charged to his account."—Milwaukee Journal.

Shake Up Your System.

Don't economize in bath water. Don't economize sleep. Don't be stingy with fun. Laugh all you can.

Reason—Laughing shakes up the system, makes the blood circulate, wakes up the lungs, starts the digestion, warms the feet, kindles the brain to quicker work, soothes the nervous system. In a word, it rears you all over.—New York World.

Conciliate.

George (seriously)—Do you think your father would object to my marrying you?

Ad—'I don't know. If he's anything like me, he would.—Pick Me Up.

Useless Amputation.

Dr. Bond's wife was awakened by a noise in her room the other night, and when she sat up in bed she saw the doctor standing over the armchair in the room. He had a steel rod in the leg of the chair, and with a hand saw he was cutting it in half. Mrs. B. exclaimed:

"Henry, what is the name of common sense as you do it?"

"H-s-h," replied the doctor, "you'll wake the patient. You hold the chloroform to his nose while I take his leg off. 'Tis about half through the bone now."

Then Mrs. Bond got out of bed and shook him and pinched him until he woke. Then he exclaimed:

"How's the patient?"

Mrs. Bond merely said, "Come to bed, you idiot, and stop hacking up the furniture."

"Gracious, Maria," said the doctor as he collected his scattered senses, "do you know I thought I was saving off a leg that had a compound fracture! There's a 10 guinea fee gone."

And Bones went to bed feeling as if he was an injured man at having lost that money.—London Tit-Bits.

Prieftlighters as Husband.

A woman remarked the other day that she did not see how anybody could marry a prieftlighter. It was a speech that showed lack of reflection and ignorance of history, for centuries ago the Roman matron—aye, the wife of a senator—would forsake children, country, sister, husband, for the sake of a gladiator: "To the sword they love," says Juvenal. "But let this gladiator but once receive the token of his dismission he will appear in her eyes as insignificant as her old husband."

And why should not pugilists be good husbands, kind, thoughtful and generous providers? In England, where the art of wife beating has been developed to a high state of finish and by many is regarded as a marital game, it is the nobleman, not the pugilist, who has borne away from the contest the laurels for complete and scientific fighting. You don't think of trials for cruelty toward wives from the "Complete Collection of State Trials," by Thomas Howell, down to this year of our Lord. The supreme nagger is generally a man of regular and outwardly approved life.—Boston Journal.

Prices of Provisions in Rome.

I pay for kerosene oil $3.25 a gallon, and for the best Chianti, one of the finest of native wines, 60 cents a gallon. Sugar costs 30 cents a pound and salt 8 cents (this salt is a government monopoly and can only be bought at a tobaccoist's). A good roast chicken, big enough for the dinner of three people, was bought for 45 cents. Three heads of lettuce sold for 2 cents, and 5 cents' worth of potatoes puts us through the day. Palmonella, a superior servant, is considered very well paid at $7 a month, and her helper receives only $4.

Meat, vegetables, eggs, milk and butter are all very cheap, but groceries and all imported goods are enormously dear. Labor is cheap in every form, while fuel and light are so extravagant and expensive that they come under the head of luxuries. We burn nothing but wood, which is sold by the passo, a ridiculously small amount, which costs $4 and will keep a fire burning for about a fortnight.—Maud Howe Elliott in Boston Transcript.

His Evil Eye Quelled the Italians.

One of the many superstitions fears that render the laborers from sunny Italy so generally docile was recently taken advantage of by a shrewd Irish foreman employed on a public job. There was a misunderstanding likely to result in a general strike, and he assembled the men together, listening patiently to their statement of grievances. When they concluded, he called to his side the bookkeeper of the contractor, a man with penetrating dark eyes, one of them quite ill because it was artificial. The foreman stated with emphasis the only terms upon which he would compromise, and the bookkeeper kept his "evil eye" fixed on the crowd. The terms were accepted without a murmur, and the crowd, hastily dispersed. The bookkeeper was entirely unconscious of performing any part in determining the controversy.—Philadelphia Record.

Women in India.

Women in India are as fond of the play as their sisters in the occident, but owing to the peculiar handicaps of oriental life, so far as women are concerned, their indulgence in the amusement is attended with some embarrassment. A clever correspondent of the London Graphic describes a play she was permitted to attend. The space immediately before the footlights that is occupied in our theatres by the orchestra is given over to the feminine portion of the audience, who have seats sunk a trifle below those of the first rows, while to further propitiate custom is a high screen of wood interposed. The play began at 9 o'clock and lasted till 2 in the morning. The female characters are, of course, all taken by men, who are, however, wonderfully successful in their makeup and impersonation.

It Won't Do.

Local politicians attempt to win votes from the Democratic party by saying the present administration will flood this country with foreign pauper labor, and that our wages will go for naught. This is the cheapest sort of gabble. Under the Republican administration there was a complete business stagnation, and as soon as Congress finished its labors, there having been a reduction in the tariff, business began to improve, and now it is apparent that it will soon be on a boom with plenty to do for every one at good prices. Recently one Republican was heard to say that a man was knocked down in Cincinnati last week, between the hours of ten and eleven o'clock, and robbed; that this is the way things go in London, and that the Democratic administration is the direct cause. He did not know who did the robbing, whether a foreigner or native. Such stuff from sensitive men as a means of electioneering is inexcusable ignorance.

Judge W. J. Gaynor has declined the Democratic nomination for Judge of the New York Court of Appeals. He expresses regret that his former friends in Brooklyn who have stood for higher political methods have threatened to oppose the ticket, and is pained that the campaign should be dragged down to the plane of ward politics by factional quarrels. He adds that if he thought his withdrawal would injure Senator Hill's chances he would try to find some way to allow his name to remain on the ticket, and he hopes that the Senator will win. The anti-Tammany element in New York City, selected a ticket Friday, headed by Col. W. L. Strong, a Republican, for Mayor, and John W. Goff, the counsel of the Lexow Committee, for Recorder. The Republican convention later nominated these two, but left the rest of the ticket blank, because the Grace Democratic faction refused to endorse the ticket as selected.

THE CALAMITY BAND.

Keep Your Eyes Open, Democrats

LOOK UP THIS PICTURE. The Chairman of the Republican County Committee said a few days ago to some gentlemen of unquestioned veracity: "We want to get the County Judge's office in our hands and then we will appoint a starry-eyed Democrat, and we will be able to control the county's elections in the future as we desire."

Democrats, notice that the Chairman of the Republican Committee says the County Judge, who is a Democrat, acts as fairly in the matter of appointments as he could ask him. Notice, too, that the Republican mouthpiece says that should the nominee of his party, by any chance, succeed in getting control of those appointments, he will act in such a way as to defeat the will of the people. Now would not we be putting ourselves in a nice little hole to place in office a man whose friends are already untiring such a course for him, if it is as impossible for the Ethiopian to change his skin or the leopard his spots, as for a Republican to depart from ways that are dark or tracks that are vain. This is the same old crowd that turned over the South to the Carpet Baggers, that inflicted McKinleyism on the country, that gave us Davenportism, and wanted to treat us to that nice little mess they so smoothly call the "Lodge Elections Law," (and which their county party organ denominates "a wise and patriotic measure"), better known as the Force Bill.

Senator Hill Accepts.

Senator David B. Hill on Saturday formally accepted the nomination for Governor of New York. Judge Charles F. Brown was named by the State Committee in place of Judge Gaynor, who declined the nomination, for Judge of the Court of Appeals. In accepting the nomination Mr. Hill says: "The gubernatorial office has no longer any attraction for me, and personally I preferred to remain in the Senate, where the duties were gradually becoming more congenial to my tastes and where I believed I could more acceptably serve the interests of this great State."

"But personal considerations must have weight where public duty is concerned."

The greatest financial disaster this country has endured in a lifetime came upon it while the McKinley Bill, the yet measure of the Republican party, was in full force. The boasted beauties of protection bore their fruit in a financial depression that is without a parallel. Yet Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Bosley, candidates for Congress, would tell you that it only requires more of the same poison to cure the sick patient.

Hon. Charles J. Bronston will speak at the Court-house at 2 p. m. Court-day. Don't fail to hear him.

Born, on Thursday, October 6th, to Olive Evans and wife, of North Middletown, a daughter.

The City Registration.

The voters of the city came out in full force to register on Tuesday. The registration is as follows:

	Rep.	Dem.	Ind.	Pro.
First Ward...	31	179	3	0
Second Ward...	64	126	10	0
Third Ward...	243	86	3	0
Fourth Ward...	24	82	15	1
Total.....	382	463	31	1

Total number registered, 867.
The increase in the number of registered voters is largely to be found among the increased number of negroes who registered. This is specially noticeable in the Third Ward where the negroes were brought out in force. Some of those who swore as to their residence may yet find that they were preparing themselves for a stay at Frankfort.
The legal voters who failed to register because of absence from the city on the regular registration day will have an opportunity to do so on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday preceding the November election.

Public Speaking.

Hon. Wm. C. P. Breckinridge, of Lexington, Ky., will address the voters of the Tenth Congressional District in support of the Democratic nominees for Congress, at the following times and places:

Jackson, Breathitt County, Monday, October 15th; Salsberyville, Magoffin County, Tuesday, October 16th; Prentissburg, Floyd county, Wednesday, October 17th; Palatinsville, Johnson county, Thursday, October 18th; Mouth of Smith's Creek, Morgan county, Friday, October 19th; Sandy Hook, Elliott county, Saturday, October 20th.

The speaking will be at 1 o'clock p. m. No citizen ought to miss an opportunity to hear this distinguished orator discuss the great political questions of the day.

J. M. BENTON, Chm.
Democratic Campaign Committee
Tenth Congressional District.

Jo M. Kendall and Judge Beckner, our candidates for Congress, represent all that the Democratic party has been fighting for during the last thirty years. Brother Hopkins and Mr. Bosley represent all that the Democratic party has fought against during all this long period of time. Hopkins and Bosley are for McKinleyism, Davenportism, and all the other ills that have given the Republican party such a black and damnable record. No man need be deceived by the specious pleas of the nominees of the Republican party. They are all the advocates of all those things so unpalatable to the Democratic portion of the people. The principles they represent are vicious and the policy of their party has brought almost untold disaster upon the country.

Mr. Oscar Turner, Jr., of Louisville, is being urged to run for Lieutenant Governor by his friends in all parts of the State. Mr. Turner would be a formidable candidate. Though a young man, his abilities are ample and his acquaintance extensive. The son of Hon. Oscar Turner, former Congressman from the First district, he has had rare opportunities of gaining experience in political and legislative fields, and is well qualified by temperament and education for the position. If he should decide to enter the race he could probably count on the Fifth district, the district of his residence, and probably of the First, which was formerly his home; and these would give him a lead that would be difficult to overcome.

Hon. Charles J. Bronston.

Hon. J. M. Benton, Chairman of the Campaign Committee for this district, writes us making an appointment for Hon. Charles J. Bronston, of Lexington, to speak in the Court-house on next Monday, October 15, County Court day, in behalf of the Democratic nominees of the district. The men announced will secure for this distinguished gentleman a large audience. Mr. Bronston is one of the foremost men in the State, and his high esteem in which he is held by all in this section makes any comment unnecessary on our part. Don't miss the opportunity to hear one of the best speakers that will be made during the campaign. The speaking begins at 2 o'clock.

Hon. Jo M. Kendall, Democratic nominee for Congress, was in the city Thursday. He is in the very best of spirits over his candidacy; wherever he goes he finds the Democracy in line for him, and he will roll up the usual Democratic majority. He is making an active canvass, and in every portion of the district he finds the party is organizing and presenting a solid front to the enemy. Mr. Kendall has made an exhaustive canvass of the upper counties and he knows whereof he speaks when he says the Democratic majorities will be reduced nowhere in the district.

The Republicans of the Eleventh Congressional district are deeper into the mire than ever, by reason of a decision of Judge Wallace Jones, who made permanent the temporary injunction granted John D. White some ten days since restraining the Republican Committee from holding a primary election. White's claim that the fact that the Committee did not give the notice required by law invalidated the election, was sustained. Judge Jones further enjoined the Committee from certifying the result of the election.

Why should any man live on the high-priced lands of the northwest, subject to forest fires, cyclones and blizzards, when the South's doors are open and a cordial welcome awaits him?—Albany (N. Y.) Herald.

Yes, and in all the South there is no more inviting field to be found than Kentucky offers. We have room and a hearty welcome for all good citizens. The movement inaugurated by the Board of Trade of Louisville looking toward the holding of an Immigration Convention in that city this month, is a step in the right direction, and is receiving the hearty co-operation of all classes throughout the State.

A Flopper.

The venerable ex-Senator Lyman Trumbull, of Chicago, is making a record as a political "flopper." Starting as a Democrat over fifty years ago, he was later a Republican, again a Democrat, and now he has become a Populist.—Courier-Journal.

The weekly review of trade by the Dun and Bradstreet agencies show that while no radical change appeared during the past week, the indication point to continued progress in the direction of improvement. From several points in the South the report are very encouraging.

The Democrats of the Eleventh Congressional district are preparing to take advantage of the Republican row over the nomination of a candidate, and have called a convention to meet at Middleborough, Tuesday, October 16, to choose a Democratic candidate.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

The Two Competitors.

Once upon a time there were two neighbors who were always competitors for popular favors—not as politicians, but in the line of riches and grandeur. They vied with each other as to which should live in the finer house, which should have the finer turnout, the largest balance in bank, etc. They seemed even to strive for the greater posthumous fame, for when one of them took sick, and in view of the possibility of death before long, he arranged to have the finest possible casket and tombstone, and that for an epitaph there should be written the words,

"SUCH AS A MAN."

When his competitor saw this he decided not to be outdone, and ordered that on his tombstone should be put the words,

"SUCH A MAN AS THAT OTHER HUGGINS."

Married, at the home of the bride's parents, near Aaron's Run, Thursday, October 4, 1894, Mr. B. G. Yarker to Miss Lucy Lee, the handsome daughter of Peter Lee, Mr. John Lee and Miss Mattie Pendleton were the attendants. Elder B. W. Trimble handsomely tied the knot that made the two one. After the ceremony the guests were invited to partake of a hospitably spread dinner. The same afternoon Mr. John F. Lee, brother of the bride above mentioned, was married by Elder Reynolds, at North Middletown, to Mrs. Ella Roberts, of this city.

The war with China seems to be popular in Japan. It is stated that the citizens of the latter country have twice the amount required. The representatives of all the several political parties have entered into an agreement that nothing will be done and no attempted legislation will be tolerated that will in anywise embarrass the Government so long as the war is pushed with vigor. This is Japan's fight, and all other considerations must give way to it.

The Cent's condition is so serious that the end is expected in a few weeks. His ailment is now called "necrosis of the kidneys, and public ruin is suffering from excessive bloodletting at the hands of his physician.

KINDNESS, GENTLENESS, LOVE.

Always Command the Respect of The Educated and Refined.

Prof. Gentry with his army of educated ponies and dogs will hold forth at McGowan Show Grounds near Cili-max Mill, Wednesday night, Oct. 10. One of the secrets of the wonderful success of Prof. Gentry is that he is as kind and gentle to the little beastly Shetlands and dogs as a fond mother is to the children she loves. He has only to tell them what he wants them to do, and it is done. They all seem anxious and willing to perform their parts as any one who might expect to be liberally rewarded. This may partially be from the fact that they so thoroughly enjoy the visit of the audience on the stage after each performance and seem disappointed when a visit is not made them. They thoroughly enjoy the sweets and carresses of the ladies and children. Admission: Adults 25c, children 15c.

Good Times at Last.

Augusta Chronicle: Instead of hoping for better times and believing that they are only coming later on, it is time for our people to realize that the business revival is on us already and get a move on them accordingly. There is no use to wait for the procession to run over us. Let's get a move on and go ahead just as if what we had been waiting for was here. In every section of the country there are manufacturers starting up that have been idle. Strikes are ending and men are going to work on full time, and the Republican and Populist calamity howlers will soon be absolutely without a leg to stand on.

Albany Herald: The prosperity of the South attracts more and more attention among the business men of the North. The great dry goods houses in Northern cities agree that in this section are the most active buyers and that nowhere else are the signs of improvement more remarkable.

to go into the hands of a receiver. A number of suits were filed prior to the last term of the Franklin Circuit Court by creditors seeking for the appointment of a receiver, and the pray-

he being one of the largest creditors of the road, and the order for a receiver was entered by Judge Holt, sitting as a special Judge. Mr. Geo.
B. Harper, Superintendent of the road was named as receiver, and in reality the road will go on as usual, the appointment of a receiver in now way

NOT SUPERSTITIOUS.

But Very Queer Things Happened to Him

There is a gentleman of uncertain age, but with quite an amiable disposition, residing out on the Suburban road, who has a grievance, and he does not care who knows it. As the story goes, this particular west-ender has a wife and three or four children and incidentally everything else to make him happy. There is only one fault in the family—the wife is very superstitious. She believes in dreams and signs and omens, to the utter disgust of the head of the household.

The disgusted husband started out the other night to convince his better half that there was nothing in dreams and omens. He turned over the saltbath at the table and did not get mad, he walked under a step ladder and was not assassinated, he looked at a cross-eyed man in a street car and carried out none of the instructions that would have resulted in a horrible disaster, and he did many other things that caused his wife to believe that he would certainly die before morning. He didn't die, however, but evoked next morning with a regular Mr. Bowser smile on his face.

He did not forget to call his wife's attention to the fact, either, and reminded her that hereafter, if he did want to hear any more silly talk about "thus and so" being a sure sign of "such and such." The head of the household was a happy frame of mind that morning, firmly believing that he had convinced his wife.

He alighted from a car at Locust street, Sixth street, and found a half black north on Sixth street fell into a cellar.

Only one finger was broken, but he was jolted up in such a manner as to cause grave uneasiness. While returning home in a car the car jumped the track, and he narrowly escaped death. Upon reaching his residence he accidentally tumbled over a baby carriage and broke his finger. While at home in bed, with the ever comforting wife ministering to his wants, he never mentioned anything about her superstition.—St. Louis Republic.

Promotion on the Field of Battle.

On the field of battle the Emperor Napoleon would pull up in front of a regiment, and calling the officers around him would address each by his name. He would ask them to mention whom among them they considered most worthy of promotion on a decoration, and then passed on to the soldiers. Such testimony delivered by those of the same rank around the various regiments together with the bands of confidence and esteem, and these promotions, granted by the soldiers themselves, had all the more value in their eyes.

In the course of one of these distributions of military rewards, which were like family scenes, an under officer was designated to the emperor as the bravest of the brave. The emperor, while agreeing that he possessed all the qualities necessary to make a good officer, added that, in rendering him this justice, he regretted that on account of a serious backache, he was unable to recommend him for promotion. "What is it?" asked Napoleon quickly. "Sir, he can neither read nor write." "I appoint him officer, colonel. You will have him admitted as such."—Memoirs Baron de Meneval.

Two Brothers.

In Marblehead, Mass., two brothers are living who have not spoken with each other in many years. They are twins and as like each other as two peas in a pod. One is named John Thomas and the other Thomas John. Each is the only relative the other has in the world, and yet for some little time they had many years ago one said, "I'll never speak to you again," and the other said likewise. They live in the same house, eat at the same table, but occupy separate parts. They have one boat in common and go fishing together, but exchange no word. Should a visitor go with them each will talk freely to him and in the other's presence, but no remark will pass between them. And yet they are friendly. Should one be sick I have no doubt the other would nurse him carefully, for if one hears the other slightly spoken of there is a pause at once, and he will defend the absent one with his last breath.—New York Press.

Cultivating Cinchona.

The path passes at first through cinchona plantations, and as it rises from the plain commands fine views of the fertile valley and of the mountain ranges to its south. The cultivation of the cinchona tree is one of the principal industries of Java, and the chemical process adopted by the Dutch for the preparation of the drug is said to produce the best quality of quinine procurable. This is carried out in Holland, whither the bark is stripped from the trees and dried and exported.

Cinchona plantations are frequent on the lower hills throughout Java, and the trees are of all sizes, from those mere saplings up to 30 feet high. The price of quinine has fallen so low in the European markets that its production is said to rarely pay the expenses, and most of the cinchona now grown is government property.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Where Water Runs Up Hill.

Mr. Marcell explained how water would run up hill in the state of New York. He touched an electric bell, and a messenger was sent for a chart that would prove what he was to say.

"This happens every day in the Hudson river," he began. "You will see by this chart of the tides that when it is low water at Governor's island it is high water at Poughkeepsie and low water at Albany. There is a full undulation, like a long mountain wave, which the water of the historic river climbs over and flows down again. It happens this way: When it is slack water in the Hudson, or low tide, this extends up 10 miles. Then the flood tide rushes in from the ocean, and when it reaches the mouth of the river drives under the fresh water. The salt water is more dense of course and lifts all the water in the Hudson bodily on its surface. To observe it, the river is running up an incline for a considerable portion of the distance to head of tide water."

Mr. Marcell said that the condition was the same in the East river, when a summons came from the office that one of the scientists wished to confer with him, and the party of hydrographers broke up.—Washington Post.

Pawnbroking is a Habit.

"Pawnbroking is a habit," said my friend who sits under the shadow of the three balls. "Yes, mostly a habit. After anybody has hung up something with me a few times he's pretty sure to become a regular customer. He does business with me just like clockwork after that, always goes broke just so long before pay day."

"One of the best people I have are a husband and wife, and neither knows that the other ever heard of such a thing as hocking a watch. I knew that from the way they acted, and I was pretty much surprised one day when the woman brought in the pawn ticket for her husband's watch. She didn't look as if anything unusual had happened, and I sized up the situation and gave her her own watch instead. That was what she wanted. Next day the husband came in with the ticket for his wife's watch. I gave him his own, and he never knew the difference. You see, they had hidden their tickets in the same place. They have brought their watches around promptly ever since, which they wouldn't have done by any manner of means if I hadn't let my wits about me. It takes brains to run my business."—Buffalo Express.

Satisfaction.

On one occasion some remarks of Incledon, the famous singer, gave offense to a man who resolved to have "satisfaction" for his wrongs. Accordingly he hunted up Incledon the next afternoon, finding him at dinner in a noted hotel. "Mr. Incledon," said the visitor, entering the room in a towering passion, "you have been making free with my name in a very improper manner, and I've come to demand satisfaction!" After some parleying, Incledon rose, and striking a graceful attitude in the center of the room began to sing "Black Eyed Susan" in his most brilliant style. When he had finished the song, he said coolly, "There, sir, that has given complete satisfaction to several thousand people, and if you want anything more, I've only to say you're the most unreasonable fellow I ever met!"—San Francisco Argonaut.

Artificial Eyes.

The artificial eye proposed by Ambrose Pare were thin carved plates of gold, painted and enamelled to match the sound eye. Glass eyes seem to have been of more recent origin, and I should like to know why they were invented. Pare's suggestion first appeared in his "Methode Curative des Playes de la Teste Humaine," folio 226, Paris, 1561, where he gave four illustrations showing the back and front of a right and left eye. Some further particulars are given in Malgaigne's "Oeuvres Completes d'Ambroise Pare," volume 2, page 603, (Paris, 1840), from which it appears that in subsequent editions of his books Pare proposed in some cases to keep the eye in place by a thin wire passing behind the ear. As a non-professional man I venture to suggest that most persons would rather wear a shade than put up with the inconvenience of Pare's artificial eye.—Notes and Queries.

A Fable.

Once upon a time an Ass donned a Lion's skin and brayed with as close a simulation of a roar as he could command. The multitude was on him and gave him the laugh. "But, the Four Hundred were impressed and dejected to him. "Oh, mamma!" the latter cried. "That animal is not a Lion." "He is as good as a Lion for us," rejoined the Four Hundred. Thus arose the genius known as the Social Lion.—Detroit News-Tribune.

BATTLE WITH A SHARK.

The Kanakas Fought Well, but Failed to Secure Their Big Game.

"A shark is considered an ugly customer by most people," said Captain L. E. Irwin of Dakota last night, "but a Sandwich islander likes nothing better than a regular bout with him in his native element. I once had the pleasure of witnessing a battle royal between a good sized shark and two Kanakas. As the latter evidently did not consider themselves in any danger, it was fine sport to watch the fight. We were fishing for mackerel, and the shark had been playing about for some time, driving away the fish and snapping at our bait. At last we missed him and heard a great shouting from two Kanakas who were fishing on a rock."

"They were pulling away at a stout line, and the shark was floundering at the other end. The line soon broke, but the Kanakas had no idea of letting the rapine off so easily and jumped into the water after him. Now came the tug of war. One of the natives seized the shark by the tail and ran with him toward the shore. The shark twisted his head under his body, and showing his teeth close to the Kanaka's hand made him let go and spring out of the way. The shark turned tail and made the best of his way toward deep water. It was now the turn of the other Kanaka. He also caught the shark by the tail and made for the beach, while his companion pounded away at the shark with stones and a big stick. "As soon, however, as the shark turned upon him the man had to let go his hold, but this time the shark turned toward deep water, their chance to seize him. The battle went on for some time, the shark in a rage splashing and twisting about, and the Kanakas in high excitement, yelling at the top of their voices. At last, however, to our regret and to the great disgust of the Kanakas, the shark managed to reach deep water and thus escape from his tormentors, carrying with him a hook and line as well as numerous cuts and bruises."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How James Fays Was Down on Greek.

Our neighbors—not very numerous—were chiefly clergy. One of them, unusually learned, was much given to Greek quotations. I was learning Greek at that time—a language which I was glad was dead and wished was buried—and those sonorous lines of his, to which the ladies listened with reverent awe, irritated me extremely. One of them asked me once in a hushed whisper the translation of one of these quotations. "You ought at school," she said, "and ought to know." I gave her to understand with an opportune blush that it was scarcely meet for a lady's ear. "Goddess of the ladies!" she cried. "You don't mean to say?" "Pray, don't quote me in the matter," I put in pleadingly. "But I really—no, I really couldn't tell you," which was quite true. She went away and told all her lady friends that Mr. C. indulged in quotations which were not such as could be translated to modest ears. It injured his character for a long time, but cured him of a very bad habit. It was my first appearance in the role of a public benefactor.—Cornhill Magazine.

"It will be well" protested a member of the family that had long been afflicted with a case of "croup" or "whooping cough." Reference was made to Dr. Fenner's Golden Balm. "Doubt had been expressed that it would cure consumption," the protesting member testified. The invalid, the frequent visits of the doctor, and had accompanied the "croup" had not been a "hoarse" cough, the "nerveous irritation," the "constant cough" the "profuse expectoration."

He had also seen the discontinuance of all these—the administration of Dr. Fenner's Golden Balm, followed by the restoration to perfect health, and he knew the Golden Balm was what had done it. He was "honest and fearless" enough to "tell the truth." Cures also given for, bronchitis, colds, dysentery, bruisés, burns, cuts and all sores—in fact, inflammation in any form, from a corn to a consumption. No inflammation no cure, no inflammation no consumption. One whooping cough cures La Grippe. Never disappoints. If satisfaction not given, money refunded. Take a bottle home today.

That Grindstone.

The most remarkable grindstone on earth is owned by Mr. J. J. Patterson, of Hawserville, Ky. It has been in use on his farm since 1850. It was made from stone on his farm; it is used by his entire neighborhood and was with the times. In good times it sheds its grit liberally, but in hard times it becomes hard as flint. This year the sparks from it have put out the eye of a boy who was turning it and set fire to a pile of straw fourteen feet from it.—Ex.

The Governor of North Carolina does not, under a new regulation, give out any news as to pardons. Friday there was a case out of the ordinary. Six and one-half months ago Robert Dixon was convicted in Guilford county and sentenced to eight months imprisonment for stealing a pair of shoes. He was a native of Dinwiddie county, Virginia. A month ago his mother went to North Carolina and asked for his pardon. It is said she had walked all the way. Her prayers were of avail and the Governor wrote an order for her son's pardon.

Gov. Brown has issued writs calling special elections, to be held November 6, for the purpose of filling vacancies in each of the counties in which the office of Representative in the lower house of the General Assembly is now vacant. Six members have resigned and one, Hon. George W. Gullion, has died since the adjournment of the Legislature, and all of these counties will hold the special election. Those who have resigned are Hon. Albert H. Charlton, Seventh district of Louisville; Hon. W. T. Hopkins, of Pike; Hon. I. M. Quigley, of McCracken; Hon. S. W. Mays, of Henry; Hon. R. E. Hawes, of Hancock, and Hon. W. M. Beckner, of Clark.

Thrilling.

Mrs. Powers, of Calletburg, fell asleep on a train between High Bridge and Danville last Saturday and her little girl, six years old, fell from a car window while the train was going fifty miles an hour. She was picked up at Burgin, more dead than alive, but no bones were broken and she was able to resume her journey the next day. Mrs. Powers slept until she reached Danville, she was one on the train knowing anything about the accident until they reached this city. A telegram to the conductor from Burgin told of the whereabouts of the child, which was being cared for there by Dr. Meredith. Captain Cox says that Mrs. Powers, after missing the child, and before the telegram came, told the railroad officials very complacently, that if the child was found to send her on by the next train.—Danville Advocate.

H. C. Turner sold to Mr. A. N. Riddle the farm he lately purchased of Judge John E. Cooper, lying on the Levee pike one mile from town and containing 115 acres, for $85 per acre. Mr. Turner some three months since paid $75 per acre for the place. Mr. Riddle will make some handsome improvements on the farm.

A sure indication of hard times manifested itself last Monday when good mule colts that were wont to bring $70 to $100, sold on the street at $15 to $30. An October delivery of mule colts at such prices was never before heard of in this market.—Harrisburg Sayings.

D. C. Terhune writes that Terhune & Co. paid from $25 to $31 per head for 25 good mare mule colts at Harrisburg Monday, and that the 40 mixed colts they shipped to Pennsylvania averaged $19 per head. Tuesday Mr. Terhune received 130 fine sugar mule colts and shipped them to James Guthrie, of Shelbyville.—Danville Advocate.

The question of establishing a Jefferson county State Fair is again on foot, and this time it is likely to be a success. The scheme is to form a stock company of from $100,000 to $150,000, and to run the enterprise in connection with the Louisville Trotting Association.

It is estimated that the average value of the potato crop is about $50 acre, while the value of grain per acre is less than one-fourth that amount. Potatoes sold during this year, at certain times, for $1 or more per bushel. We do not grow enough potatoes in this country for our use, and are compelled to import them. They are the most costly of all food in proportion to price, as they are composed very largely of water.—Philadelphia Record.

The entire potato crop of Wisconsin is placed at 1,100,000 bushels, 5,000,000 of which are grown on the sandy lands of Waupaca and Portage counties. There were 2,500 car loads, or 1,250,000 bushels of potatoes shipped from Waupaca alone last year, about 1,000 car loads from Plainfield, from Scandinavia, and in all 8,000 car loads from this district, which is forty miles long and twenty miles wide. This year it is estimated that the shipments will reach 10,000 car loads, and the crop will be worth something more than $5,000,000.—Exchange.

Some of the papers in the State are reporting that tobacco growers are much exercised on account of the "pool" the tobacco warehouses of Louisville are said to have formed, and that it is feared the combine will work to the disadvantage of the growers. We have heard no complaints from growers in this section. The one piece of advice that is reasonable will be found in the caution to our people not to be in too much of a hurry to sell unless they can secure very satisfactory prices. This county has the tobacco in both quality and quantity, and the buyers will be around among them in a short while offering all the crop is worth. More, our growers are not compelled to either sell or ship to Louisville houses. There will be other buyers around to buy the fine crop that this county has for sale.

"The Thunder" on the Anti-Lynchers.

The London Times comments as follows on the reply of the Governor of Alabama to the meddling anti-lynching committee from Mr. John Bull's domains. The Times says:

"While we have little or no sympathy with lynching, we have none with anti-lynching committees, who betray an consciousness of the magnitude or delicacy of the problem in which they interfere. We should not be surprised if the committee's well-meant letter had the effect of multiplying the number of negroes hanged, shot or burned, not only in Alabama, but throughout the Southern States. This would be a bitter stroke of irony, but it is a fate that often attends fanatical anxiety to impose our own canons of civilization upon people differently circumstanced."

If this same committee that is so exercised about the affairs in the U. S. will look into some of the brutalities that exist on their native shores, there is no question but they will have all they can attend to for a lifetime. In the meantime, their good example at home may have so influenced us in reforming some of the deplorable abuses that exist in our midst, that there would be no need for their long voyage across the Atlantic.

A Curious Case.

During the Versailles Fair in Lexington, Capt. B. J. Treacy, of Lexington, while in attendance, was served with a summons on a suit filed by Mr. James C. Graves, the well known horseman, for $300, balance claimed to be due on a horse.

Captain Treacy put the summons in his pocket, forgot the case, and when the time for trial came judgment was allowed against him by default. Last Thursday Sheriff Frazier of Fayette, having received the judgment for collection from Sheriff R. H. Stout, of Woodford, served notice on Captain Treacy. The latter was thoroughly surprised, and at first could not remember the case. Then he recalled having paid Mr. Graves in full of having the papers at his house. He had to plunk up the $300, however, but before doing so he filed a counter suit against Mr. Graves, charging fraud in obtaining the judgment, and while Treacy was paying the money over to the Sheriff, a constable arrived on the scene and made an attachment on the money while in the Sheriff's hands until the final adjustment of the case by the courts.—Woodford Sun.

A Plucky Woman.

Mrs. J. G. Hubbard, who lives on Broadway nearly opposite the Christian church, was awakened by a noise at the back door of her residence about 1 o'clock Thursday morning and looking out of the window saw two men, a white man and a negro, endeavoring to gain an entrance into the back door. Her husband being absent she secured his pistol and shot at the burglars. Of course they fled and were no more seen. She telephoned to the Phoenix Hotel, but when her brother Mr. Tom Davidson, a policeman, arrived nobly was to be found—Lexington Gazette.
